

Job Advert - Clinical Specialist - Upper Limb Prosthetics (Greater London & South of England)

Job Description

We currently have an exciting opportunity within the Excellence Team to recruit a Clinical Specialist in Upper Limb Prosthetics. The position will provide dedicated clinical and technical support, and facilitate growth in sales for all COVVI products within the United Kingdom and Republic of Ireland. There will be particular focus on providing exemplary levels of customer service and clinical support to rehabilitation centres within Greater London and the South of England.

About Us

COVVI is a portmanteau of the Latin 'Coperor' and 'Vita', translating as 'working together' and 'life', respectively. The two 'v's represent multiple lives changed. In other words, COVVI was conceived to change many lives by working together - within our team, with clinicians worldwide, and with our users.

Our main objective is to design and deliver the COVVI Hand; the world's most advanced, powerful and robust bionic hand. Creating a myoelectric multi-articulating device that surpasses leading products within the industry is not a feat that comes easy. Passion, hard work and dedication have ensured that the design, function and long-term operational logistics derived from extensive use, repair and customer support are prioritised every step of the way. Our design-led organisation has continually endeavoured to reach as many users on a global scale as possible. Our visionary team has utilised premium materials and cutting-edge design to be able to deliver a ground-breaking medical device that establishes a new level of quality and performance.

Key Responsibilities

- Support a network of clinicians in the UK and ROI to deliver prosthetic innovations in a way that reflects the values and objectives of COVVI.

- Operate within the Excellence Team and provide specialised technical support to clinicians and users in the area of advanced upper limb solutions
- Build and maintain close relationships with key clinical partners and rehabilitation centres within Greater London and the South of England, including NHS and private rehabilitation centres.
- Deliver clinical training resources and issue certifications to attendees to increase confidence and understanding of the COVVI product range
Represent COVVI at industry conferences and exhibitions, and present workshops on current product offerings.
- Operate autonomously to arrange clinical visits and provide specialist assistance and expert customer service to clinicians and users.
- Be a strong advocate for the provision of multi-articulating hands and advanced upper limb prosthetic solutions within the NHS and private clinics.

Location

- Remote working with weekly travel requirements
- Attend COVVI HQ (Leeds) upwards of two-days per month.

Requirements

- Qualified Prosthetist/Orthotist with Health Care and Professions Council (HCPC) registration.
- Member of the British Association of Prosthetists & Orthotists (BAPO)
- Minimum of 5 years experience practising within the field of Prosthetics & Orthotics.
- Experience with upper limb prosthetics including; passive, body-powered & externally-powered solutions.
- Ability to work autonomously and manage your own clinical schedule.
- Excellent communication and interpersonal skills, and ability to build immediate rapport with patients and clinicians at all levels.
- Ability to navigate challenging scenarios and action solutions within a timely manner.
- Excellent problem-solving skills and ability to confidently provide direction to clinicians on the best upper limb solutions for their patients.
- Hold a full UK driver's licence

Desirables

- Evidence of further postgraduate education (e.g. MSc, PgCert)
- Member of the International Society for Prosthetics and Orthotics (ISPO)
- Experience with advanced upper limb solutions, such as; multi-articulating hands, powered elbows and myoelectric componentry
- Familiarity with the rehabilitation centres within the territory of Greater London and the South of England, and have pre-existing relationships with clinicians operating within this area.
