Dear BAPO members,

At this time of year, it's easy to feel that Income Protection isn't a priority, or that it's too much of a stretch right now. Life is busy, budgets are tight, and protecting your income can easily slip down the list.

But if you couldn't work, how long would your income support you?

Sick pay only lasts so long and savings can disappear fast. That's when a safety net matters – and where Income Protection Plus steps in.

Support that continues when your income doesn't

If you're unable to work due to sickness or injury, Income Protection Plus can pay you an ongoing income up until you're well enough to return to work, or reach 65, whichever comes first, giving you financial stability at a time you need it most. Find out more.

And it's more affordable that you might think

You can tailor your plan to suit your needs and budget: choose how much of your income you want to protect, and decide from our list of options when the policy starts paying out - from the first day of your illness up to a year! This flexibility helps keep premiums manageable whilst also giving you meaningful protection.
