About the Role

Based at the QEUH campus in Glasgow, you would lead the West of Scotland consortium prosthetics service – a team of approximately 25 clinical and technical staff, serving a region of 3 million people, and an active patient population of around 3000. You would be NHS Greater Glasgow and Clyde's professional lead for Prosthetists. You would also have a small clinical caseload.

Why WestMARC?

You would be responsible for a skilled team, who are committed to further developing their service. You'd be working with the prosthetics team colleagues across WestMARC, and the wider organisation, to implement and sustain changes that will tangibly improve care for our patients.

You would be supported by an established, capable management team within WestMARC, colleagues across NHS GG&C, and the Professional community across Scotland. Formal board-wide induction training will be provided.

Colleagues within the service, and in equivalent roles across the organisation, are available for mentoring.
